

Avalanche (possibly sled/human triggered) on an easy to northeast facing slope around 9300 feet. There were lots of sled tracks on the slope, which is located just out of the wilderness at the far end of Buck Ridge. Slide and sled tracks appeared to be from after the weekend storm and were covered with light snow from the last couple days. Noted lots of wind transported snow along buck ridge this afternoon. Photo: K Marvinney

Advisory Region
Northern Madison
Longitude

-111.47W

Latitude

45.18N

Avalanche Details: Avalanche along Buck Ridge

Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Sat Feb 4, 2023GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Sun Feb 5, 2023

Northern Madison, 2023-02-04