

A bit of new snow at battle ridge

Date

Wed, 03/13/2024 - 13:05

Activity

Snowmobiling

Rode Battle Ridge to Fairy Lake Road via lower connector, then back to Battle Ridge area via upper connector. From there we took a thorough lap around the Ross Peak zone and north to the east-west boundary south of Throne, stopping to peer into the basin closed to snowmobiles south of the Throne. We observed 2 inches in the Battle ridge parking lot when we arrived and 4-5" up high. Wind was dead calm, Temperatures were hovering at freezing to above freezing. Between ross peak and throne we observed what appeared to be a wet snow avalanche from last weeks warm temperatures at 45.875941, -110.952699. We also saw no other area users which was nice. It was grauppelling while we returned to the truck.

Region

Bridger Range

Location (from list)

Battle Ridge

Observer Name

Alexander Jett